ACCIDENTS

Bring Death to Two Lawrence County Men.

Elmer Hammond and James W. Fugate Instantly Killed While at Work.

A shocking accident, resulting in the loss of a valuable life, occurred at Torchlight, a mining town seven miles south of Louisa, on the C. & O. railroad, about eight o'clock last Friday morning. Elmer Hammond, tipple boss for the Louisa Coal Co., had gone to the tipple to move a car of coal. He had taken away the "chock" which held the car, and when it began to move by its own gravity Mr. Hammond attempted to climb to the top of the car. He had one foot on the air-rup, when he was caught between the moving mass and one of the tipple posts and crushed to death, the space between the car and the post being only four inches. Death was instantaneous.

The funeral occurred on Saturday under the direction of the Torchlight lodge of Odd Fellows, of which body Mr. Hammond was an esteemed member, and was very largely attended. Interment was made in the John Wallace graveyard, on the head of Triffitts creek. Mr. Hammond was in the 39th year of his age, sober, industrious and highly esteemed. A widow and nine children are living. His wife is a sister of Mrs. Dan Stansberry of Louisa.

On Tuesday last, while rafting logs near his home at the mouth of Horseford branch about a mile above the mouth of Indian, James Fugate, formerly of this city, was caught by rolling logs and his body killed. The logs were on the creek bank, several in a bunch, and Mr. Fugate, with a cant hook, had begun to roll them into the water. He had been warned to be careful, but probably thinking he was in no danger he began to pull at a log with the hook. He had no sooner done so when the mass began to move. He jumped to avoid the logs, but he was too late, one of them rolling over him, but he arose merrily upright, when another rolled over him, crushing the life out of him instantly. The body was not mangled, but the back of the head was crushed, evidently by a big knot on the log. Mr. Fugate was buried on Wednesday at Newcomb burying ground, about three miles from the place where he met his untimely death.

The funeral was conducted by Fullbrook lodge of Odd Fellows and was largely attended. The deceased was a son of the late Granville Fugate and was 42 years old and left a widow and six children. He was a brother of Joe Fugate and a brother-in-law of George Salter, both of Louisa. He was an industrious, sober, honest man and good citizen and his untimely falling off is a loss to the community in which he lived.

Prominent Cerebral Death.

Frank Motte, of a well known in this city, Saturday night Mr. Motte was stricken with apoplexy, and his death resulted mostly from the infirmities of advanced age. He leaves to mourn the loss of a kind and devoted husband and father a wife and several children all of whom are married and live at a distance away. Mr. Motte is a brother-in-law to Atty. R. C. Burns and Mrs. A. C. Gallagher in this city and possesses many friends here who regret to hear of his death. —Cynthiana Tribune.

The wife of the deceased was a sister of Mr. S. S. Burns of this city.

LEAP YEAR PARTY.

One of the most delightful social affairs given in Louisa for a long time was the Leap Year party at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Nash last Friday evening, at which the young ladies of Mrs. Nash's Sunday School class were hosts to many guests. In honor of the preceding day the decorations, beautiful and profuse, metely told of George, Martha and the famous cherry tree. Even the "interior garnishing" bore ample and satisfactory evidence that the birthday of the paternal progenitor of the land of the free was being remembered on this auspicious occasion. The imported cream had been frozen in likeness of the man who wouldn't take a third presidential term and of the stately wife who was probably "mad" because he declined; but George's declaration of another term did not keep the gay crowd from whirling man and wife from the face of the platter. "Music rose with his voluptuous swell," a variety of amusing stunts were performed, and the highly pleased crowd broke up late.

MR. WATSON'S BIRTHDAY.

Last Monday, Feb. 26th, was Dr. M. G. Watson's 43rd birthday, and his wife planned and successfully executed a surprise dinner party for him at their home in Huntington. When he went home at the regular hour for dinner that evening he was completely surprised to find several Lawrence county friends very composedly awaiting his arrival. The guests and family were much amused at Dr. Watson's unmistakable astonishment at having been thus caught unawares. He soon recovered, however, and in his usual genial way did his full part in making the occasion thoroughly enjoyable. Dinner was served in several courses and was one of the most elaborate and delicious "spreads" we have had yet before us. Those present were J. W. M. Stewart, W. L. Watson, F. L. Stewart, J. W. Rucker, A. J. Lear, F. H. Yates and M. F. Conley.

MRS. ELLIOTT DEAD.

Passing of Judge Elliott's Widow Recalls Tragedy.

Mrs. Susan Elliott, widow of the distinguished Judge John Milton Elliott whose statue adorns the court house square in Catlettsburg, passed away Sunday at 11:35 a. m. She had been ill for a long time of a complication of troubles, but was most patient and enduring. Mrs. Elliott was before marriage Miss Susan Jane Smith, a daughter of the Hon. William Smith, of Prestonsburg, and was married to John M. Elliott, then a young practicing attorney more than sixty years ago. On Tuesday morning the remains were taken to Frankfort, where they will be placed beside the grave of her husband, under the shadow of the monument erected to his memory by the State of Kentucky, in the historic Frankfort cemetery. Mrs. Elliott is her will provided for the establishment of a scholarship in the University of Kentucky, Lexington, to be called the Susan J. Elliott scholarship, to cost not exceeding $2000.

The death of his widow recalls the assassination of Judge Elliott at Frankfort on the 26th of March, 1879, while a member of the court of appeals. The tragedy is graphically described in the following dispatch from Frankfort:

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 25—Judge John N. Elliott was assassinated in 1879 in this city by Col. Thomas Buford, of Henry county. The killing occurred in Ann street at the women's entrance of the Capitol Hotel. Col. Buford had bought a tract of land in Henry county from James Guthrie, and had made a payment of $14,000 on the land. He was unable to meet further payments and the title of the land was questioned. The lower court held the title valid and ordered the land sold for debt. It brought less than the $14,000, and the Art Court sustained the sale. Col. Buford was rendered insane. WORK IS ACTIVE

In the Oil Field Near Louisa, and Prospects are Fine.

The Reuben Fork well was shot last Saturday and the tests made since are reported to indicate that the well will produce from six to ten barrels per day. Negotiations are now under way for a pumping outfit for the well.

A late report says 700 feet of oil accumulated in the well within two days. It is reported that the Veora wells will be shot and put to pumping very soon.

The Cochran well will be shot within a few days.

The Laura Webb well was drilled in last Friday and is reported to be dry.

Tom Hays is moving his machinery to the Hughes tract, adjoining the poor house farm, and drilling will start as soon as the machinery can be put in place.

Sam Spencer is drilling for the New Domain west of the Hueseyville property and will start a well for the Holt-Shannon company near Fred.

The well on the Betty Pigg tract will reach the Heron sand this week.

The Cow Run well at Torchlight was to have been shot about the time the NEWS went to press today.

DIED AT GEORGES CREEK.

Mrs. Asbury Preston, aged 62, died at her home near Georges Creek station on Monday last, after an illness of many months. She was buried not far from her residence on Wednesday. She is survived by her husband and several children, all of whom except one are married. Mrs. Preston was a sister of Mrs. P. H. Vaughan, of this city. She and her daughters, Mrs. C. H. Bromley, Mrs. James Hatcher and Miss Belle Vaughan, attended the funeral.

Mrs. Preston came to Riverview hospital last fall and submitted to an operation which protracted her life, but disease had progressed so far that ultimate recovery was impossible. She was an excellent woman, and many relatives and friends deplore her death.

REMOVAL OF OPERATORS.

There is now no telegraph office between Kenova and Wayne. From Wayne the next jump is to Dunlow, and from Dunlow to Dingess, each of these offices being more than twenty miles from the nearest. The same thing is true on the Big Sandy line, no stations or waiting rooms being open except at the larger towns. The passenger stops are maintained, however, as "flag" stations, but in winter there is no shelter for persons waiting for trains and no facilities for determining whether passenger trains are on time.

KILLED AT VAN LEAR.

Fred Brown, an employe of the coal company operating at Van Lear Ky., met with a horrible death at Van Lear Junction last week when he was accidentally struck by a train and instantly killed. Mr. Brown had been employed at Van Lear for a number of months.

He lived in Wolfe county, where his body was taken for interment.

PARADISE LOST.

The Fourth Sermon-Lecture on Paradise Lost by Dr. Haaford at the M. E. Church, subject: The Told at Eve's Ear, and what he said. You will want to know, so come and you will be satisfied. Sunday evening, March 3rd, at 6:30.

Jack Thompson, Ira See, Chitt Holbrook and B. E. Adams were the victims of an assault by the U. C. T. of Ashland last Saturday night all being more or less disfigured. George Lewis, Lawrence, Ky., Bill Jim, and Ray, all of whom were in the hall when the curtain was pulled down on the assault, were taken to the hospital. Those who want to attend the prayer meetings, can, if they will go promptly at the hour for service, six-thirty, reach the hall in ample time for Mr. Battis' entertainment.

STEAMER THEALKA SINKS.

Recently the steamer Thealka was caught on the lee a mile below Whitehouse, and was so damaged that when the rise in the river came she sank. The damage was caused by her hog chains having broken, causing the hull of the craft to break in twain. The boat is a total loss to her owners. She was valued at $2,500 and there was insurance to the amount of $1,000 on her.

The insurance adjuster, and Capt. J. E. Meloy, formerly of Louisa, the chief owner of the boat, went to the scene of the wreck and the claim against the insurance company was adjusted. It is said that under the laws of marine insurance the company insuring the craft will get the machinery and only the amount named in the policy will be paid the insured, hence the net loss to the owners will be about $1,500.

COLD IN DEATH.

Lylug cold in death the body of an unknown white man was found last Thursday evening in the clatters along the N. & W. tracks at Naugatuck. The crew of a freight train discovered the corpse and reported the same to the proper officials.

Not a mark of identification was found on the body. The fellow had evidently been hobnobbing his way and in attempting to board a train had been struck on the head and instantly killed.

LEG BROKEN.

On Saturday last as Francis the 5-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McClure, was climbing over a wire fence near a post brace his feet became entangled in the wire and he fell to the ground. The fall broke the boy's right leg near the ankle. The fracture is what is known as a comminuted one, and the little fellow is suffering much. Dr. Bromley set the limb. The accident occurred at the McClure home near town.

BIG SANDY RIVER.

Re-Survey Provided for in Rivers and Harbors Bill.

A resurvey of the entire Big Sandy River has been ordered. Representatives John W. Langley, of Kentucky, and James Hughes, of West Virginia, want appropriations for continued work on the Big Sandy forks, but the army engineers are in doubt about the merits of the proposition, and determined to review the entire matter.

Esteemed Wayne Citizen Dead.

At the age of 76 years, John Jarrell, a prominent resident of Wayne county, W. Va., died Tuesday night of last week, after a protracted illness.

The deceased was one of the best known citizens of the county. For 24 years he was a member of the county court, and during that time achieved a reputation for fairness and integrity. He was a son of Rev. John Jarrell, a pioneer minister of the Big Sandy valley, and was well known in this city.

Mr. Jarrell's life work was one of continual solicitude for the welfare of his neighbors. His removal has created an unwonted sadness among those who knew and loved him. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

BATTIS WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

Let us not forget the entertainment billed for next Wednesday night at Masonic Hall, at which time and place W. S. Battis, renowned as an impromptu and interpreter of Dickens, will appear. Mr. Battis comes endorsed by the press of the entire country as being unequalled in his line of work. There should not be a vacant seat in the hall when the curtain rises Wednesday evening. Those who want to attend the prayer meetings, can, if they will go promptly at the hour for service, six-thirty, reach the hall in ample time for Mr. Battis' entertainment.

THE ELKHORN PROJECT

Greatest Enterprise of the Kind in the World.

The greatest coking-coal development ever undertaken in the world is doubtless that of the Consolidation Coal Co., which is now opening up on a gigantic scale its 100,000-acre tract in the heart of the Elkhorn field of Eastern Kentucky, accounted by many to be the best coking coal known in the world and a region which is destined to have a far-reaching influence upon the development of the iron and steel interests of America, for high-grade coking coal is as essential as the iron ore itself, and the supply of coking coal is doubtless less than the supply of iron ore.

The purchase and development of this coal property, and the railroad construction necessary to provide the facilities that will be needed for the handling of the coal, will represent an aggregate outlay of probably $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 the Louisville & Nashville Railroad alone having work now in progress for the construction of its line into that territory at a cost which will probably reach $15,000,000.

Mr. J. H. Wheelwright, president of the Consolidation Coal Co., in an interview with the Manufacturers Record about the work which his company is doing in the Elkhorn field, said:

"The 100,000 acres of land purchased by the company lies in the eastern part of Kentucky and covers portions of Pike, Letcher and Knott counties. The principal workable seam, the Elkhorn No. 3, has a comparatively high elevation, and it is only at the heads of the principal streams that it is approached at water-level. At the point where the watersheds of the Kentucky River and the Big Sandy River divide there is a large unbroken area of this seam, and it was to this point the railroads were directed for its most compact and economical mining. The entire area of field is practically equally divided between the Kentucky and Big Sandy rivers. The topography of the country is mountainous, but the approach by railroads to desired points is made by easy grades.

"The eastern portion of the property, on the Elkhorn and its tributaries, will be served by the Sandy Valley & Elkhorn Railway, a line 40 miles long, which is being built by our company, from a connection with the Chesapeake & Ohio at Shelby Junction, on the Big Sandy division. The Consolidation Coal Co. has a contract with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. by which the latter agrees to equip the Sandy Valley & Elkhorn Railway with the necessary cars and motive power to move the output of the mines on that road, which it is estimated will not be less than 3,000,000 tons within two years from the date of the completion of the road. Two thousand all-steel cars of 100,000 pounds capacity have already been ordered and are now being built.

"The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. is building a line from Jackson, Ky., into the property, a distance of 98 miles, which the engineers estimate will be completed by August 1 of this year.

The terminals of the two roads as at present proposed will be about two miles apart, but it has been proposed, though not authorized, by the Louisville & Nashville Company to connect the two by means of an additional line of some six miles and a short tunnel. Such a connection would give the Louisville & Nashville a route down Elkhorn Creek to what is known as the 'Breaks of Sandy' and an ultimate connection with the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad and the Clinchfield Railroad at Ohio when completed.

"It is the intention, as far as possible, to concentrate the operations about a central point. This plan resulted in locating the town of Jenkins, which will have the general offices, the main store, the bank and the residences of the officials, and which will be the general distributing point for all the operations. Here, too, will be located the central power plant, with an ultimate capacity of 10,000 kilowatts. The water supply for power generation will be assured by the construction of an impounding dam with a capacity of some 40,000,000 gallons. A secondary dam and reservoir, which have already been constructed, and which will be fed by mountain springs, will supply, by gravity flow, the domestic needs of the residents of the town. This town, known as McRoberts, will be built on Wright's Fork, which will be the principal community of the Kentucky River development.

"Tipples have been built, mines opened up and entries started on lines that at this time are considered best. Machines, motors and other mechanical appliances tending toward large capacity and economy in production will be installed. All power to all plants at present proposed will be supplied from the central plant at Jenkins. Tenement-houses of good construction and of various sizes are being built for the miners and laborers.

"At this time eight mines have been opened up and entries driven in order to have sufficient development for the contemplated output when the railroad is completed. Tipples are in process of erection, while machine shops, blacksmith shops, stables, etc., at the various mines are being rapidly provided. Some 200 miners' houses have been completed, and there will be probably 300 or more finished by the time actual coal loading is begun.

"Six large mines have been located on Wright's Fork, on the Louisville & Nashville extension, and these are being opened up and entries will be driven so as to enable the company to commence shipments on this side of the field as soon as the Louisville & Nashville road is completed, which will be the first of the coming August. This will make a total of 14 mines.

"We have had to cut timber, install five sawmills, erect brick plants, planing mills and dry kilns, construct roads for the transportation of materials, machinery and supplies, and erect temporary dwellings for the workmen. Little of the difficulties of the situation can be given by a mere verbal description to anyone not acquainted with the character of the country and the great extent of the operations. But everything is now nearly completed that when coal loading begins the mines on the Sandy Valley & Elkhorn Railway will be prepared to produce 25 tons of coal a day.

"Immediately after the project was purchased instructions were given our engineers and officials to proceed with development as they found it to provide a production of 25 tons annually, and to make the work as to enable us to produce and ship within two years from the date of the completion of the transportation line at the rate of 3,000,000 tons annually. To handle this greatly-increased output the sales organization has been enlarged and strengthened in preparation for marketing. Headquarters for the Western sales division have been established in Chicago, with a trained and efficient staff, and plans are laid for making a complete and thorough canvass of all territory available for this field. The coal will be distributed through the great Middle West, in which the shorter distance to be hauled and the lower freight rates should give it considerable advantage over that from either the Pocahontas or the Connellsville fields, from which comes the only coal that would be competitive for this high-class business. Taking all these together, we think we are justified in our belief, that we are now developing the greatest undeveloped coal field in the country."

This is the story, simply told, of this coal development, which, as stated, is doubtless the greatest ever undertaken in the world. That is to say, no other single company ever began a development with the fixed intention from the start to produce so large an amount of coal, outlining its plans from the beginning and bending all efforts to their consummation. To produce 7,000,000 tons of coal a year means that there must be produced on every working day of that year almost 25,000 tons, and as mining cannot be counted on to run more than two-thirds of the time, it means that while running they must produce hurled by the Masonic fraternity of which he had been a member for years. A large delegation of the members of Vinson Lodge, his home lodge and a goodly number from Wayne Lodge, participated in the burial services.

Huntington, Feb. 24.—Five months from the day he disappeared the battered and blackened body of Albert Osborne, 47 years old who disappeared mysteriously last December 23, was found floating in the Ohio river near 10th street west, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning by Howard Straight, a youth who chanced to notice what at first appeared to be a barrel and later proved to be a human corpse.

The body, removed to the Johnson morgue, was identified by relatives by physical characteristics and by clothing which Osborne wore when he disappeared. The mystery of the man's disappearance has baffled the police for two months.

Kaysers, W. Va., Feb. 21.—"If I robbed that train I was so drunk that I didn't know what I was doing," declared F. A. Becker, a Baltimore and Ohio brakeman held under arrest here charged with holding up the Baltimore and Ohio passenger train at Everett Tunnel, Garrett county, Maryland Monday night. After two hours strenuous fight this morning Becker told the authorities of this career. He said he had come here from Philadelphia, where he had worked for the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company. He lived, he says, at 28 West Abbott street. He said he was 40 or more years old and was a fireman in the United States navy, but was taken to a Government hospital for the insane at Annapolis.

Becker said he was born in Scotland, Pa., and his relatives there. He told of his record and of how he had hidden near the scene of the robbery. The memoranda are said to have authenticated his statements. The prisoner is in almost a nervous collapse.

Little Crutcher and Lucy Trout fifteen year old girls, were convicted of arson in the recent court at Wayne last week. They admitted having set fire to a barn belonging to Eli Babbage, in order, they said, to be sent to the reform school where they might secure an education.

According to F. S. Cherrington the deputy state fire marshal their case is a pitiable one. They were practically reared on the Wayne poor farm and the outlook which life afforded them was one of almost utter hopelessness.

They heard of the reform school and decided that if they could be sent there they could learn some of the things which would tend to make of them useful and happy women.

In their confession to the officers at Wayne they stated that they had planned to burn several buildings besides the barn which was destroyed. Among the buildings they had planned to destroy had their plans not been successful were a church and several dwellings.—Advertiser.

Homesley Removed to Charleston. Huntington, W. Va., Feb. 24.—Bert Homesley, who was arrested here and charged with the murder of Detective Jack Horton at Charles town last summer, was identified, yesterday by Baldwin detectives, one of whom had witnessed the shooting affray which ended the life of the popular officer. It was Constable Robert Holmes, of Kanawha county, who said that in his opinion, Homesley was the man who shot down Detective Horton. Constable Holmes was an eye witness to the tragedy.

Detective Horton, a C. & O. agent, with several other officers were in the yards at South Charleston, and were endeavoring to arrest three hoboes. They encountered strenuous resistance, and in the melee Horton was killed. His slayer escaped and two suspects that had been captured, were released. In the meantime circulars were issued and a reward of $50 was offered for the capture of Homesley.

Chief of Police Davis recognized Homesley despite a luxuriant mustache that he had grown, and unhesitatingly as he walked along Eighth street near the C. & O. railroad. Homesley has been held here for several days pending the arrival of detectives. He was returned to Charleston yesterday afternoon.

Has Bob Brown, of the Louisville Times, anything further to wish for? He has had a cigar named for him.

Republican members of the State Farmers' Institute seceded and organized a separate institute upon the refusal of Commissioner of Agriculture Newman to allow their choice to preside on the ground that such action would inject politics into the organization.

Theodore Roosevelt Sunday made public a reply to the seven Republican Governors who asked him to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, in which he said he would accept the nomination if it was tendered to him.

Full of years and honors, Prof. Charles Louis Loomis, eminent educator, minister, Greek scholar and Christian gentleman, affectionately called the grand old man of Transylvania University, of which institution he was president for several years, passed away at his home at Lexington Tuesday morning, aged eighty-eight.

Speaking of Roosevelt's candidacy the Courier-Journal but the whole matter into small compass:

The effort to secure for him the nomination will now become decidedly interesting. His partisans, who for several weeks have been industriously attempting to pump up a "spontaneous demand" for him will be re-energized and go to work with redoubled energy. But, in the Courier-Journal's opinion, the pumps will be used, before very long, not to inflate a boom, but in the vain effort to expel the water from a sinking ship. The Courier-Journal miles do not think that he has a chance of winning the nomination; but if by hook or by crook, he should get it, no president would be better warranted that he would come to his glorious defeat at the hands of his "ants' Hoopla."

of his loss and determined to kill the members of the Appellate Court. He had made up his mind to kill Judge Pryor, his neighbor as he felt more aggrieved at him than any other member of the bench, but refrained from doing so because Judge Pryor had a family.

Judge Pryor stepped in at the grocery of Lawrence Tobin, a prominent politician of that day, to taste some cider, and Judge Elliott came on up to the hotel. Col. Buford was waiting on the opposite side of the street, and when Judge Elliott was about to step on the first step to go into the hotel he called to him. Judge Elliott turned. Col. Buford firing on him with a double-barrel shotgun. The loud report affected in his breast, killing him instantly. Col. Buford came up to where Judge Elliott was lying and, picking up his hat, he placed it under Judge Elliott's head, and felt to see if his heart was beating. Finding that Judge Elliott was dead he said:

"Off to the wars again. Home has no charms for me and battle-fields no pain."

By this time Judge W. H. Sneed, who was boarding at the hotel, rushed out and arrested Col. Buford.

"Consider yourself under arrest," said Judge Sneed.

Col. Buford replied: "I surrender to the law."

Judge Sneed remarked: "It's a pity you did not do it two minutes ago," to which Col. Buford replied: "I have been wronged greatly."

Col. Buford was placed in jail, and a mob formed to take him from the jail to lynch him.

Gov. McCreary was Governor at that time and ordered the McCreary Guards to the jail, and they dispersed the mob and saved Col. Buford's life. Col. Buford was sent to the asylum at Lexington, but escaped to Jeffersonville, where he remained for a long time, as there was no law to extradite escaped lunatics. Being unable to get support he finally returned to Kentucky and surrendered himself to the asylum authorities where he died.

DON'T OVERLOOK THIS.

A Careful Pedestrian Will Prove Its Value to Every Louisville Reader.

The average man is a doubter, and there is little wonder that this is so. Misrepresentations make people skeptics. Now-a-days the public ask for better evidence than the testimony of strangers. Here is proof which should convince every Louisville reader.

Mrs. F. Skaggs, Lock Ave., Louisville, Ky., says: "A cold which settled on my kidneys caused an attack of lumbago and I also suffered from rheumatic pains through the small of my back. My kidneys and bladder became inflamed and the kidney secretions were unnatural. There was a dropping swelling in my thighs and I always felt tired, weak and nervous. The contents of two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills gave me entire freedom from these annoying symptoms of kidney complaint." (Statement given January 28, 1909.)

A Lasting Effect.

On June 21, 1902, Mrs. Skaggs was interviewed and she said: "I gladly confirm the testimonial I gave for publication in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills a year and half ago. I have had no return attack of kidney trouble since this remedy cured me."

THE ELKHORN PROJECT.

duce more than 30,000 tons daily. An average of six tons to the miner for each day's work would mean employment, of 5000 men to mine a 30,000-ton output. These would be the miners alone, and for handling the coal from the time it leaves the miners' rooms until it is loaded on the cars, and in operating the many departments of a mining plant, in addition to the actual mine itself, there would be required almost as many more men and boys, so that the number employed in the operations of these Elkhorn mines will be somewhat like 8000 or 9000. Add to these the families of such of the men as have families, and we find that there will be a population thrown at once into what a year ago was an entirely unpopulated territory of anywhere from 25,000 to 35,000 people.

Not only so. A year ago the land now being developed by the Consolidation Coal Co.—a boundary practically 40 miles square was an unbroken wilderness, lying idle, producing nothing, giving up nothing for the wealth or comfort or convenience of mankind. Now it is alive with humanity, active enterprise, rapidly approaching the time when it will send out its millions of tons of heat and power potentially to bear a part in the general advancement of human enterprise and industrial progress.

The story covered by Mr. Wheelwright's interview is one of the most striking ever told of the great game which modern business is, and yet it is related by the commanding general of the fighting forces in a manner so simple and matter-of-fact that one must look deep under the surface of the mere words to recognize the tremendous significance of the things described.

A BLOOD MEDICINE WITHOUT ALCOHOL.

Recently it has been definitely proven by experiments on animals that alcohol lowers the germicidal power of the body and that alcohol paralyzes the white corpuscles of the blood and renders them unable to take up and destroy disease germs. Disease germs cause the death of over one-half of the human race.

A blood medicine, made entirely without alcohol, which is a pure glyceric extract of roots, such as bloodroot, Queen's root, Golden Seal root, Mandrake and Stone root, has been extensively sold by druggists for the past forty years as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The refreshing influence of this extract is like Nature's influence—the blood is bathed in the tonic which gives life to the blood—the vital fires of the body burn brighter and their increased activity consumes the tissue rubbish which has accumulated during the winter.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, the founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, and a physician of large experience and practice, was the first to make up an ALTERNATIVE EXTRACT of roots, without a particle of alcohol or narcotic.

"It is with the greatest of pleasure that I write to let you know of the great benefit I received from the use of your medicine and self-treatment at home," writes Mrs. Wm. Hayes, of Ladysmith, B. C. "I suffered for three years from a running sore. Consulted four doctors but they failed to mend or give relief. Finally I was told I was in consumption and would have to consult a specialist concerning my ear, that the dead bone must be cut out before the wound would heal. A kind friend advised me to write to Dr. Pierce, which I did, and after seven months' use of the treatment the sore is healed, and I enjoy better health than I ever did. I dressed the wound with Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve and took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' for my troubles. I shall always recommend your medicine."

A cheery "Good morning" often sends a ray of sunshine streaming through the innermost recesses of a household, resting there all the living day, and again follows hasting footsteps into the mart of business, lighting up and brightening "the way of the world" as it goes. A hearty "Good night" often soothes many a troubled mind to rest and heals the wounds which have either come anew to a struggling soul, or been re-opened by the harsh words or deeds that are spoken or done in season or out of season, as the daily battle of our life progresses.

for their husbands, but who have an almost unconscious habit of nagging the poor man from morning till night. Strange, isn't it?

Love is the great home-maker. That makes even the drudgery of housekeeping a pleasure, and home life a foretaste of the bliss of heaven. One cannot get too much love into one's home-making, but easily too little.

Sunshine in the lives and souls of people is just as potent in the realm of home as the sunshine that drives darkness from our world and brings that warmth which is essential to life and growth in the vegetable kingdom. There is a convincing and vivifying power in soul sunshine; for, as has been well said, men and women, youth and children, seek the friendship of the sunny-faced.

FELIX WELLMAN.

Felix Wellman, a well known citizen of Waterson, was killed by a grist mill, a pair of buhrs bursting, and one of the mill posts which held the buhrs in position struck him about the chest with force enough to drive him through the oak side of the building, causing instant death. The mill had been running but a short time when the accident occurred. He had never tightened the buhrs for grinding. He had just started the engine and went back and hung a sack and just came out when they exploded. It tore the bottom buhr all to pieces, broke every bolt and hand rod and every post, and the bottom sheet which the buhrs were mounted on burst all to pieces and it never hurt the top buhr or the hopper. Everything went down like lightning stroke.

It seems as though Mr. Wellman has had lots of trouble in his life 23 days old. He had belonged to and nearly everything he had. Mr. Wellman was 57 years and 23 days old. He had belonged to the church for 12 or 14 years. He had two children. Ten years ago the 14th of this Aug. his youngest girl caught on fire and burned to death, she was 17 years old. WHITE-WEDD.

At 11:30 a. m. on Christmas day, 1911, Mr. Richard N. White, of Chester, Pa., and Miss Cynthia Webb, eldest daughter of Joe Webb, were married at the beautiful home of the bride in Riverside, near Mammoth Spring, Ark., the Rev. Weston Mays, of Springfield, Mo., officiating. The bride was dressed in a beautiful gown of oriental lace over blue silk, wearing only jewels presented by the bridegroom.

The wedding was rather a quiet affair, the guests being only the immediate friends of the family in Riverside. The bride received quite a lot of beautiful presents from her many friends around and near her latter home in Arkansas, from the relatives of the bridegroom in Chester, Pa., and from quite a number of friends in Wadsworth, Oregon, where she was very popular as a teacher. One present in particular was a wedding cake in the form of a huge ladies hat, the brim being over two feet in diameter, a beautiful bunch of flowers and overgreens decorating the crown. The cake was presented to the bride some time before her marriage by Mrs. Bridget Hays, a highly respected old lady of Mammoth Spring, and familiarly known as "Aunt Blidie."

Miss Cynthia was teaching school near her home but her sister, Miss Mollie Gumbill, who had just closed a term in an adjoining county

WILD BILL

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "MY LADY OF THE SOUTH," "WHEN WILDERNESS WAS KING," etc.

Illustrations by DEARBORN MELVEL.

Copyright, A. G. McGraw & Co., 1907.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Jack Keith, a typical border plainsman, is riding along the Santa Fe trail on the lookout for roaming war parties of savages. Keith had won his spurs as a captain in a Virginia regiment during the civil war. He had left the service to find his old southern home in Texas, his friends scattered and the fascination of wild western life had allured him. He notices a camp fire at a distance and then sees a team attacked by a wagon and at full gallop pursued by a band of ponies.

CHAPTER II—When Keith reaches the wagon the raiders have massacred the men, shot the horses and departed. He searches the victims finding papers and a locked box with a woman's portrait. He resolves to hunt down the murderers.

CHAPTER III—Keith reaches Carson City and is arrested there charged with murdering and robbing the late raiders. The accused is given as Black Bart, a notorious ruffian.

CHAPTER IV—They can readily swear to crime on Keith. The latter goes to the jail realizing the peril of swift border justice. A companion in his cell is a man, who tells him he is Ned and that he knew the Keith family back in Virginia.

CHAPTER V—Ned knows about the murdered men from the description of Keith. He says one was John Riley, the other Gen. Walter. Ned formerly an officer in the Confederate army.

CHAPTER VI—The plainsman and his double friend escape from the cell.

CHAPTER VII—The two fugitives become lost in the sand desert.

CHAPTER VIII—They come upon a creek and find a cabin. Keith recognizes the owner as a singer he saw at Carson City.

CHAPTER IX—The girl explains that she came there in search of a brother who had deserted from the army. She met a Mr. Hawley, who had induced her to come to the cabin while he sought to locate her brother.

CHAPTER X—Hawley appears and Keith is led to a rooming house. Keith tries to persuade her to leave.

CHAPTER XI—There is a terrific battle in the deserted room in which Keith slays Black Bart. Hawley is surprised and the girl who says that her name is Hope, joins in the escape.

CHAPTER XII—Keith explains his situation as a fugitive from justice.

CHAPTER XIII—The fugitives make the ford of the Arkansas slinging to the Fort Larned.

CHAPTER XIV—Here the girl is left in charge of the hotel landlady.

CHAPTER XV—Keith is riding Black Bart's horse in the saddle-bag discovery a letter bearing the name of Chris MacLair and he believes Miss Hope saved him in disguising that name. The Hope tells the landlady that she is the daughter of General Wallis.

CHAPTER XVI—The fugitives Keith and Ned drift into Sheridan. Here Keith kills an old friend named Fairbairn, the plainsman speaks of the murder of General Wallis, but Fairbairn insists that he saw the general alive in Sheridan only the day previous.

CHAPTER XVII—At the tavern Keith is disturbed by the talk of two men in an adjoining apartment. One of them speaks of trying to find Black Bart. He has a companion, Fred Willoughby, which is the assumed name of the brother of Hope Wallis. When the other man goes, Keith enters the room.

CHAPTER XVIII—Willoughby acknowledges that Hope is his sister, but is sworn about Chris MacLair.

CHAPTER XIX—An overheard conversation convinces Keith that Hope Wallis is not the stage singer Chris MacLair, but that Black Bart has some plot in progress involving the two girls and the landlady's brother.

CHAPTER XX—Hope, getting a clue to the fact that General Wallis is in Sheridan, starts for that town.

CHAPTER XXI—Hope Wallis is mistaken for Chris MacLair at Sheridan.

CHAPTER XXII.

An interrupted interview. Miss Christie MacLair, attired in a soft lounging robe, her luxuriant hair wound simply about her head, forming a decidedly attractive picture, gazed with manifest disaffection on the dark walls of her room, and then out through the open window into the comparative quiet street below. The bartender at this "Palace," directly opposite, huddled being asleep, was leaning negligently in the doorway. His roving eyes caught the fair face framed in the window, and he waved his hand encouragingly. Miss Christie's brown eyes stared across at him in silent disgust, and then wandered again about the room, her foot tapping nervously on the rug carpet.

"It's my very last trip to this town," she said decisively, her red lips pressed tightly together.

Miss MacLair had indeed ample reason to feel aggrieved over her reception. She had written to have the best apartment in the house reserved for her, and then, directly because she had later been informed out to Fort Hays, and was consequently a day too late in arrival, had discovered that another woman—a less important, not daily manœuvring under her name—had been duly installed in the coveted apartment. Driven from the fort that morning accompanied by two of the more successful frontier officers, she had then been obliged to perform most artificial work the evening before in the spacious new hall, and feeling confident of comfortable quarters awaiting her, she had been something of a shock to be informed by the perturbed clerk that "it" was already occupied by another. "A lady whom I met in last night, and I naturally supposed it was you."

In vain Miss MacLair protested, ably backed by the wonderful officers who still indignantly attended her; the management was inflexible. Then she would go up herself, and throw the hussy out. Indeed, too angry for bantering further words, Christie had actually started for the stairs, intending to execute her threat, when the perspiring Tommy succeeded in stopping her, by plainly blurting out the exact truth.

"Don't you ever do it," he insisted. "The marshal brought her in here, and fired a fellow out of the room so as to give it to her. He'd clear out this house if we ran in a cold deck on a friend of his."

"What do I care for what your marshal does?"

"But he's Bill Hickcock, Miss 'Wild Bill'!"

Miss MacLair leaned back against the stair-rail, her eyes turning from Tommy to her speechless supporters. Slowly the truth seemed to penetrate her brain.

"Oh," she gasped at last. "Then—then what else can you give me?"

The officers had long since departed, promising, however, to remain over in town and hear her again that night at the Trocadero, with hints as to a late supper; she had received a call from the manager of that most popular resort, and had rendered his life miserable by numerous demands; had passed half an hour practicing with the leader of the orchestra; but now was at last alone, tired, decidedly irritable, and still tempted to invade "it," and give that other woman a piece of her mind. Then some one rapped on the door. There was a decided note of vexation in the voice which made the one outside enter, but the lady's mood changed swiftly as her brown eyes perceived standing in the doorway the erect form of Keith, the light from the window revealing clearly his strong face. The man stood hat in hand, bowing slightly, unable to comprehend why he should have been sent for, yet marvelling again at the remarkable resemblance between this woman and that other whom he had left at Fort Larned. As Miss MacLair stood with back toward the window, she presented the same youthful appearance, the same clearness of figure, the same contour of face.

"Miss Christie MacLair?" he asked as though in doubt.

"Yes," graciously, won instantly by the man's appearance and manner, "you wished to see me? Will you be seated?"

He crowded the narrow room to the stiff-backed chair, bowed, and the lady sank negligently down into her own, resting her head against a pillow, and regarding him expectantly. He could view her now much more distinctly, observing the slight difference in age, the fuller lips, the darker shade of the hair, and the varied expression of the eyes. It was as if a different soul had looked forth from the same face. He had never before realized how little, apparently trifling, details marked the human countenance, and, embarrassed by her own scrutiny, his glance swept about the room. Misunderstanding this shifting of eyes, Miss Christie sought to place the man more at ease.

"The room is a perfect fright," she observed briskly, "but what can one expect in these mushroom towns. I really had never been here before, or I shouldn't have come. They pay good money though for talent, and we all have to live, you know. Are we in professional work?"

He shook his head, smiling, somewhat perplexed at her reception.

"Really I didn't suppose you were," she went on, "you don't look it. But there are so many who come to me to help them that I have grown suspicious of every stranger. May I ask why you desired to see me?"

Another suspicion had taken possession of her mind, for the man of that section were never backward in exhibiting admiration, yet somehow this man did not seem exactly of that kind.

"I came merely because I was sent for, Miss MacLair," he replied, his gray eyes once again upon her face. "Doctor Fairbairn gave me your message; I am Jack Keith."

She looked the complete astonishment she felt, sitting up in the chair, her eyes filled with questioning doubt.

"Doctor Fairbairn! My message! Surely you are mistaken? I know no one of that name, and have sent no message."

"You did not express a desire to see me?"

She laughed, exhibiting a row of white teeth.

"Certainly not; not until this moment when I even aware of the existence of Mr. Jack Keith."

His own eyes smiled in response to challenge of hers.

"I can assure you the surprise was mine also," he hastened to inform her, now more at ease, as he grasped the situation. "I could not understand how I had become known to you, yet, pledge you my word the message was actually brought. Of course you may smile at this, for I have seen you on the stage, and being a normal man, have wished that I could devise some excuse for meeting you."

"Indeed!" her eyebrows slightly uplifted.

"Yes, I took that confusion frankly, yet this evening from no such source. I had no intention when I came, but what I had been sent for—you will believe that?"

"I suppose I must, yet it seems very peculiar," she replied, feeling convinced that he was a gentleman, and troubled as to what she had best do. "Yet now that you have discovered your mistake—"

"I hope to take advantage of the opportunity," he broke in again, laughing slightly forward. "May I ask you a question?"

"I could hardly prevent it, and, really, I do not know that I have anything to conceal."

"Then I will risk the effort—do you know a man named Hawley?—Bartlett Hawley?"

His eyes did not falter, although a red spot shot into her cheeks, and her lips pressed together.

"No; that is I have never met him," she acknowledged, just a little confused. "But I have received two letters signed by that name, and rather expected this gentleman would call."

Keith Backed into the Corner—His Hand in His Pocket.

upon me here in Sheridan during my engagement. Is that your mission? Were you sent by him? or are you Mr. Hawley?"

"I decline all relation, Miss MacLair, even friendship. You, of course, know who this individual is?"

"No," the short monosyllable was not encouraging. "His messages were of a business character."

"So I presumed yet one likes to know something even of the person he does business with. I have been acquainted with Hawley for several years and have never been aware of any honorable business he has ever conducted in this town."

"Black Bart," last night he was running a race across there in the "Palace." I cannot help wondering what kind of business such a fellow could possibly have with you, Miss MacLair."

The woman's eyes flashed, hardening in their brown depths.

"What right have you to ask?" she began indignantly. "I am capable of deciding my own affairs. As I have told you I have never met Mr. Hawley, but I am not to be influenced against him merely by the denunciation of an avowed enemy. He has written me of something he has discovered which is of deep personal interest to me, and has promised to tell me the details, as well as place within my hands certain necessary papers."

"I appreciate your feelings," he said gently, as she paused, "but would you mind telling me the nature of those papers?"

There was something in Keith's face which told of honesty, and inspired confidence. Miss MacLair's worldly experience had given her deep insight into the character of men, and somehow, as she looked into the clear gray eyes, she felt impelled in answer, a vague doubt of the unknown Hawley in her mind.

"They were papers to establish identity. He had discovered them by accident; they have to do with an inheritance. Really that is all I know, for he wrote very briefly, stating it would be wiser to confer with me personally—only I imagine there is a large sum involved."

"From whose estate?"

"My grandfather's."

"And his name was?"

"Why—why, Mr. Keith, actually I do not know. It may seem strange, but I cannot even tell the names of my parents; I cannot remember either my father or mother. Oh, I do not know why I should tell you all this! Who are you, really? Why do you ask me such questions?"

He leaned forward, touched by the woman's emotion.

"Miss MacLair," he said gravely, "I am not prying into your life needlessly, but an endeavoring to serve you as well as others. Hawley may indeed possess papers of great value, but if so they were not found by accident, but stolen from the body of a murdered man. These papers may possibly refer to you, but if so Hawley himself does not believe it—he has simply chosen you to impersonate the right party because of your physical resemblance."

"Resemblance to whom?"

"To a young woman, a Miss Hope."

"But how do you know this? Why should you be interested? Are you a detective?"

"No, I am not a detective, but I cannot explain to you my interest. I am trying to serve you, to keep you from being drawn into a plot."

"Rather to keep me from learning the truth, Mr. Jack Keith," she burst forth, rising to her feet indignantly.

"You are here trying to prejudice me against Mr. Hawley. He is your enemy, and you have come to me establishing him in the back for revenge. That is your interest. Well, I am going to see the man, and consider what he has to say. I don't care half so much about the money as I do to find out who I am. If he can throw any light on my early life, on my parents, I shall be the happiest woman in the world. I am sorry I told you anything—let I am going to see him just the same. Perhaps he might tell me something about you."

"You are well, standing the woman's eyes flashed, indignantly. "He might tell me something about you."

the false position into which he had drifted, hesitated to answer. He meant to tell her the whole story, and urge her to co-operate with him in learning the gambler's purpose. The woman impressed him as honest at heart, in spite of her life and environment; she was not one whom a swindler could easily dupe into becoming a tool.

"Miss MacLair," he began, determined on his course, "listen to me for just a moment. I am—"

There was a rap at the door. The eyes of both turned that way, and then Keith backed slowly into the darkened corner beyond the window, his right hand thrust into the pocket of his coat. Miss MacLair observed the movement, her lips smiling, a red flush on either cheek. Then she stepped across the room, and opened the door. Framed against the black background of the hall, his dark, rather handsome face clearly revealed as he fronted the window, his black, audacious eyes fixed appreciably upon the lady, stood "Black Bart" Hawley. His saw no one but her, realized no other presence, had no thought except to make a good impression. He was facing a beautiful woman, whom he sought to use, and he bowed low, hat in hand.

"Miss MacLair," he said, pleasantly, "I trust you will pardon all that has occurred between us, and permit me to explain."

"I—I do not understand," she replied, puzzled by these unexpected words. "There has nothing occurred between us, I am sure, which requires explanation. Have we not before?"

The man smiled. Seeing the woman's face in the shadows he was still convinced she was the same he had last parted with on the Salt Fork. However, she preferred to ignore all that, and let her relations stand. It was greatly to his liking. It gave him insight into her character, and fresh evidence that he could gain her assistance. Anyhow, he was ready enough to play her game.

"Let us see me now!" Just the slightest trace of mockery in the tone, and Keith now. At least, you will confess the receipt of my letters—I am Bartlett Hawley."

He cast a half-frightened glance toward Keith, and the man, following the direction of her eyes, perceived the presence of the other. His right eye went backward, his hand dropped to the belt, his lips stiffening erect. Keith's voice, low but clear in the silence, seemed to cut the air.

"Not a motion, Hawley! I have you covered."

"Oh, gentlemen, please don't!"

"Have no fear, Miss MacLair; this man and I will settle our difference elsewhere, and not in your presence. He stepped forth into the middle of the room, revolver drawn, but held low at the hip, his watchful eyes never deserting the gambler's face.

"Back up against the wall, Hawley," he commanded. "I hardly need to tell you how I shoot, for we, at least, have met before. Now, I'm going out, and leave you to your interview with Miss MacLair, and I wish you happiness and success."

He moved across to the opening, keeping his face toward his adversary; then backed out slowly, closed the door with a snap, and sprang aside to avoid any possibility of a bullet crashing after him. No sound of movement from within reached his ears, however, and he walked silently to the head of the stairs.

THE WINTER BERRY.

In cooking cranberries it is well to remember that they should never be put into a tin dish. Either agate or porcelain dishes should be used.

Cranberry Conserve.—Extract the juice from an orange, then cover the peeling with cold water and cook slowly until tender. Strain out the white, bitter part and cut the peel into narrow strips with the scissors. Simmer one and a half cups of raisins until tender; add the orange peel and the juice and a quart of cranberries. If needed, add more water to make a cupful of liquid. Cover and cook for ten minutes or until the berries are done. Then add two cups of sugar and simmer until thick.

Cranberry Trifle.—Cook a quart of berries with one pint of water until the berries pop open; rub through a sieve, return to the fire and add one pound of sugar. Stir until it is dissolved, then let boil two minutes; cool and beat until light with a wire egg beater, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Mix in a glass dish and serve. Cranberry shortcake and cranberry pie are old favorites for dessert.

Baked Apples With Cranberries.—Select large, perfect, sweet apples, remove the cores and fill the cavities with thick cranberry jelly. Set the apples in a pan of water in the oven, and bake until the apples are done. Put each apple in a glass sauce dish and serve with whipped cream.

Cranberry Roll.—Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, add a cup of sugar, a half cup of cold water and two cups of flour sifted with a tablespoonful of baking powder and a dash of nutmeg. Beat until perfectly smooth, then add another cup of flour and roll out the dough to an inch in thickness. Spread thickly with jam or jelly, roll up closely, pressing the ends together. Lay on a plate and steam for three hours. Cut in slices and serve with cream.

Another which is a great favorite.—Prepare a white sauce as follows: A tablespoonful each of butter and flour. When the butter is bubbling hot add the flour and when mixed a cup of rich milk and seasonings to taste. When well cooked add a cup of finely grated cheese, drop in gently four eggs; as soon as the eggs are set remove them and place on a slice of toast, pour the sauce over it and serve at once.

A bean or potato soup is one of the most palatable dishes to serve on a cold night for supper. Oyster stew or cream of tomato soup are both prime favorites. A dish of hot well made cream or milk toast, seasoned with a sprinkling of grated cheese, is a dish that nearly everybody likes.

When a politician holds the key to the situation it may be of some use to a democrat, but never fit a case of a hot.

SOME COMMON DISHES.

The common vegetables are so often served in the same old ways until we grow tired of the monotony. Let us try:

Cabbage Baked With Cheese.—Chop the cabbage and cook it in boiling salted water for half an hour or until tender; put it in layers in a baking dish, alternating with a white sauce and grated cheese, and bake just long enough to melt the cheese.

Turnip and White Sauce.—Wash and slice the turnips into half-inch slices, pare and cut the slices into cubes; cook in boiling salted water until tender. Make a cup of seasoned white sauce and when the turnips are done pour of the water, turn into a vegetable dish and pour the sauce over them.

Cottage Pie.—Chop cold meat to half fill a baking dish. Over the top of the meat spread mashed potato that has been warmed with a little hot milk. Mix with gravy, season to taste and put into a hot oven to thoroughly heat through.

Sour Milk Gingerbread.—Take a half a cup of molasses, one-half cup of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of shortening, one cup of sour milk, one tablespoonful of ginger, half a teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of soda, and two cups of flour.

Cream the shortening, add the sugar, molasses, salt and ginger. Dissolve the soda in the milk, which is now added, and lastly the flour. Beat well and bake in a flat loaf thirty to forty minutes.

Carrots in Lemon Butter.—Cut the carrots in long, slender strips and lay in cold water in crisp. Cook in boiling water until tender enough to pierce with a fork. Drain, and to each pint allow a tablespoonful of butter, half a teaspoon of salt, half a teaspoon of sugar, and a dust of cayenne. Simmer until the butter is absorbed, then add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and a tablespoonful of minced parsley. Boil up and serve at once.

Spanish Cream.—Soak a half teaspoon of granulated gelatin in a cup of milk. After it is dissolved add a cup of sugar and a beaten egg yolk. Cook until the egg is thick, stirring constantly, add fifteen drops of vanilla and strain into a mold to cool.

Ices Cream.—Boil together five minutes a tablespoonful of sugar and two of water, add a cup of thin cream and a half teaspoonful of vanilla, mix well and pour into a pound baking powder can. Plunge into salt and ice in a large pail or bowl and open and heat well every five minutes. It will be frozen in fifteen minutes. For those suffering from gastric inflammation, beef tea and soups are often tolerated, so if frozen like ice cream.
